The penalty number has no physical significance and is chosen based on computational convenience. Values P that are two to four orders of magnitude greater than the shear modulus of the adjacent medium were used and provided solutions in which incompatibilities were extremely small. Larger values of P sometimes of gave numerical difficulties due to ill-conditioning while smaller values gave slightly excessive incompatibility. $P(4)$ It is assumed this research that the amount of tangential sliding is small enough so that the asperity peak on one surface does not override that of is of the other surface. For situations in which this is not the case, the theory can be supplemented with an additional set of conditions as discussed in reference 7.
